THE END OF A REMARKABLE LIFE.

Mr. J. W. Murray, One of the Oldest and Most Highly Esteemed Citizens of This Section, Died Saturday Night in the Ninety-third Year of His Age—Was Ill Only a Few Hours—Leaves a Large Number of Near Relatives—A Singular Coincidence.

At Kimesville, in the Southern part of this county, Saturday night, occurred the death of Mr. J. W. Murray, one of the oldest and most remarkable men in North Carolina. Although in the ninety-third year of his age, he was in perfect health until a few hours before his death. Saturday morning he was walking around the village in the full enjoyment of all his faculties. He was in fine spirits and in conversation with friends and neighbors stated that he never felt better. At 1 o'clock in the afternoon he was stricken with paralysis, and shortly after nightfall he was a corpse. His long and useful career was ended and his spirit had forsaken its tenement of clay for the eternal home of the soul.

The funeral took place at Lowe's Lutheran church, of which the deceased had been a member for 70 years, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock and was attended by a large concourse of sorrowing friends and relatives. The last solemn rites were performed by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Brown.

Mr. Murray was born on August 8th, 1808, and spent the greater part of his life within a radius of 25 miles of the place of his death. He was a remarkable man in many respects. He had a splendid education and few men enjoyed a wider range of knowledge than he. His mind was always active and vigorous, and his information on subjects of history, literature, science, politics, etc., seemed complete. To the day of his death he was a great reader and kept posted on the current events of the day. His library is said to be one of the finest in this section of the country, containing many rare books of English and German print.

Mr. Murray was twice married and was the father of thirteen children, seven of whom are now living. He leaves forty-one grandchildren, thirty-four great-grandchildren, and several great-great-grandchildren. Among his grandchildren are Mrs. E. P. Wharton, Miss Nettie Murray and Messrs. R. W. and C. H. Murray, of Greensboro.

A singular coincidence in connection with the death of Mr. Murray is the death of Mrs. E. M. Holt, which occurred at Graham Saturday. Both were born on the same day, both died on the same day and both were buried on the same day.

BRASS BAND AT A FUNERAL.

The Death of a Member of the Star Cornet Band—When Good People Were Shocked by Another Band on a Sabbath.

It is not often that a brass band is seen on the streets on the Sabbath, but such a sight was witnessed yesterday, and it was the occasion of a funeral.

John Morrow, a member of the Star Cornet Band, died Saturday, and the band attended his funeral yesterday in a body, marching in front of the hearse, which was followed by a long procession. The noise of the band, as the procession moved along the street, attracted a great many people.

The last time a band was seen on the streets of Greensboro on Sunday was about five years ago, when a band from Bethlehem, Pa., stopped over on its return from the Atlanta exposition and visited the Guilford Battle Ground. In the afternoon the band paraded the streets playing "Dixie," "A Hot Time in the Old Town," and other lively airs. The performance created a great sensation, and it is said that some good people have not yet recovered from the shock.

A Horse Accidentally Killed.

A horse belonging to William Lindsay, a colored cab driver, was accidently killed Saturday night. Coming along East Market, a wooden trunk under the street gave way with the animal, breaking his neck and forelegs.

The sequel to the accident will doubtless be a damage suit against the city.

WILL SUPPORT GENERAL CARR.

GEN. RANSOM DECLARES FOR HIM.

The Most Notable Acquisition Yet Made to the Carr Forces—Will Give His Reasons Why Carr Should Succeed Butler—Had Been Supposed to Favor Simmons—Reported That Jarvis and Waddell are Also for Carr.

The Telegram learns from a source which is considered reliable that Gen. Matt. W. Ransom has announced his intention of supporting Gen. Carr in the coming senatorial primary. If this be true (and the gentleman to whom the statement was made by the distinguished ex-Senator can be named) it is the most notable acquisition that has yet been made to the Carr forces.

The announcement comes in the nature of a general surprise, for it has been understood that Gen. Rrnsom favored Mr. Simmons. It is said that he will authorize a statement to the press in which he will give reasons why he thinks Gen. Carr should succeed Butler in the Senate and occupy the seat so long occupied with such great distinction by himself.

It is also reported that ex-Senator Thomas J. Jarvis and Col. A. M. Waddell, both of whom have recently withdrawn from the senatorial contest, will support Gen. Carr.

THE CHRISTIAN HOME.

"But as for me and my house we will serve the Lord." From this assertion of Joshua, the staunch old leader of the Israelites, Rev. Dr. E. W. Smith last night preached a special sermon on the Christian home. The Christian home, he said, is the pillar of the church, the corner stone of the commonwealth and the foundation and support of society. Therefore the greatest thing that two persons can do is to establish and maintain such a home. And were two persons to do naught else than to establish and maintain a Christian home, the church and the State would owe them a debt of gratitude.

There are three prominent outstanding characteristics of the Christian home. The first is the family altar. The words "family altar" came from the scripture account of Joshua's practice of daily sacrificing on an altar erected in his household. In no way can the reverence and love of God's truth be so well instilled into the minds of the family as by means of the family altar, the daily reading of Scripture and the offering of prayer. Men make excuses for neglecting this all important duty. One will say his business is so absorbing that he hasn't time. It need not take more than five or eight minutes, and the man who hasn't time simply says that a few minutes of business are more important than the rearing of a godly family. Some men are too timid. They are to be sympathized with, yet when they see their children forgetting God and growing up into wickedness it will be little comfort to them to remember that they had been too timid, and it will be little excuse on the day of judgment. When husbands will not do so, or are not Christians, mothers should see to it and carry out this all imporiant matter.

The second characteristic of the Christian home is the Christian atmosphere. The altar may exist in homes without this atmosphere. Under its influence womanhood blossoms into finest fruitage, and the selfishness of man is softened into a lovingkindness and consideration of others. Sweet is the fragrance of the Christian atmosphere. No hard words, no irritableness, no suspicion or envy, or heartburnings, or hasty words unkindly spoken.

But even beyond the family altar, greater even than the Christian atmosphere is the third characteristic—the christian aim—the service of God, the dedication of a family to the chief end of man's creation.

With an exhortation that the homes of all present might be blessed by the family altar, sweetened by the Christian atmosphere, and consecrated to the Christian aim, the minister closed his most interesting and valuable sermon.

PROPOSITION NOT ACCEPTED.

COMPETING WATERWORKS SYSTEMS

The Water Company Neither Accepts Nor Rejects City's Offer of $75,000—Time for Consideration Not Sufficient—Water Committee Instructed to Proceed at Once With the Work of Installing a New and Independent System.

The present indications are that municipial ownership of waterworks will result in two independent systems in Greensboro. The failure of the Greensboro Water Supply Company to accept the last proposition made by the Board of Aldermen, and the latter's instructions to the water committee to proceed with the work of installing a plant, would seem to make that result almost certain.

The Board met in special session Saturday night for the purpose of receiving a direct answer from the Water Company. Mr. R. R. King, receiver of the company, submitted a communication stating that time for consideration of the proposition had been so short that they had not been able to consult with all the stockholders, and hence were unable to give a definite answer. The communication also stated that Mr. W. H. Bosley, representing a good portion of the stock, had been here, but finding conditions somewhat different from what had been expected, had returned to Baltimore to consult with other interested parties without entering into a full consideration of the matter.

Although their proposition was neither accepted nor rejected, nothing remained for the Aldermen but to allow the water committee to carry out its previous instructions and proceed with the work of installing a new and independent system, to be owned and operated by the city.

And thus it is that indications point to the probability of Greensboro having two competing systems of waterworks, and, incidentally, cheaper water rents.

It is understood that the new plant will be located on South Buffalo, where the city holds an option on a considerable amount of property.

"THE PRODIGAL SON."

An Able Sermon Preached by Rev. C. E. Hodgin at Westminster Church Sunday Morning—The Night Service.

Rev. Mr. Hodgin chose as his text yesterday morning the six verses of Scripture recorded in the fifteenth chapter of Luke, beginning with the eleventh verse, which contains the parable of the "Prodigal Son." This young man was unwilling to remain at home with his father and mother, to enjoy their love and confidence, be guided by their counsel and discipline, and eventually come into possession of his part of their estate, but desired to throw off their authority, ignore their counsel, and go into a far country and there enjoy himself in the pleasures of this world. As was the case of this young man, so it is today. Men are striving to throw off the authority of God, to ignore his love and claim upon them, and to spend their lives in riotous living. This desire to draw away from God is the germ of all sin. "O, my friends," said the minister, "if you feel this desire to draw away from God, nip it in the bud, and draw yet closer to his side."

There are three lessons to be learned from this part of the parable:

1st. A life of sin is a wasteful life. "And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living." The very nature of a sinful life makes it wasteful. A man in sin may hoard money, but he wastes the God-given faculties of his intellectual, moral and spiritual nature, and are these not of more value than money?

2nd. A life of sin is a life of want. "And when he had spent all there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want." A sinful life leads a man into poverty, even if his material wants are supplied, his spiritual nature is impoverished.

3rd. A life of sin is a life of servitude. "And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country, and he sent him into his fields to feed swine." This was the extent of his degradation. He became a servant to this man, not the loving service of his father, but the servitude of a slave, and fed swine, which to a Jew was the most degrading thing he could do.

TERRIFFIC CHEMICAL EXPLOSION.

Fire Began in a Drug Store at Noon and Soon a Mighty Explosion Shook the City. Debris Rained Down Many Blocks Distant—Ellis Island so Badly Shaken That a Panic Was Narrowly Averted--Fragments Were Hurled Ovor the High Buildings Into Broadway.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York, Oct. 29.—Fire started at noon in the wholesale drug store of Tarrant & Co., on Greenwich street and Warren. An explosion of chemicals soon followed and masonry and girders were hurled high in the air. Buildings in the neighborhood were badly shaken and shattered throughout. Many lives were lost nnd no less than sixty girls are thought to have been in the building where the explosion occurred. Shingles and bits of masonary and iron were hurled over the high buildings in Broadway and fell in the city hall park.

The flames spread to the buildings adjacent and crossed the street. Two more explosions occurred and the grocery store of Mouhmann & Co. and the Ninth avenue elevated road were badly wrecked. Several firemen are injured and forty girls are reported killed.

A World extra estimated the death at fifty. The Journal extra says an engine and 29 men were buried in the debris. It is believed that a fire company of fifteen men were killed and a hundred girls penned in the building. All told fifty are killed and perhaps a hundred. A score of women jumped from the platform of the Ninth Avenue station to the street. Buildings on Ellis Island were shaken so badly that a panic was with difficulty prevented. Buildings ten blocks away were injured. The debris rained down upon the streets and buildings for many blocks distant.

The Evening Post says 150 persons were in the building and that 50 got out.

AN OLD SOLDIER INSANE.

A pitiable case of mental derangement was discovered here yesterday. The subject was Alfred King, an old Confederate soldier and an inmate of the Soldiers' Home, at Raleigh. He came to this county a week or so ago on a visit to relatives, being in his right mind at that time. He came to Greensboro Saturday night, and when seen yesterday it was at once noticed that he was mentally unbalanced.

The old soldier was wandering aimlessly around the streets, but was not violent or dangerous. It is said that he has been subject to attacks of insanity for a number of years.

He was placed in jail last night for safe keeping, and this afternoon was sent back to Raleigh.

A BLUFFER CALLED.

Greensboro Gentlemen Offer to Bet $1,500 That Simmons Will Not Carry 85 Counties.

While in Raleigh a few days ago, Mr. H. B. Varner, the recently elected commissioner of labor and printing, stated that bets had been made that Simmons would carry 85 counties, but had found no takers. The statement caught the eye of two Greensboro gentlemen, Messrs. William Simpson and C. N. McAdoo, each of whom "called" Mr. Varner's big bluff.

In the Sunday Charlotte Observer was a telegram from Mr. McAdoo offering to take $500 of Mr. Varner's money and one from Mr. Simpson asking for $1,000, and more if it could be secured.

So far neither Mr. Varner nor any other Simmons man has responded. Messrs. Simpson and McAdoo stand ready to put up the cash when Mr. Varner wishes to carry his bluff into a reality.

Shot and Seriously Wounded.

Jim Cain, colored, while attempting to gain entrance to a house in the outskirts of Warnersville last night, was shot three times and seriously, if not fatally, wounded.

LIFE ENDED IN AN INSTANT

DEATH IN A FALL OF SEVEN FEET

Wade Lovett, a Colored Carpenter Employed by Mrs. Lynch, Fell from the Roof of a Coal House This Afternoon and Was Picked Up Dead—An Examination Showed His Neck to Have Been Broken—No Other Scratch or Bruise.

About 2 o'clock this afternoon Wade Lovett, a middle-aged colored man met instant death at Mrs. E. J. Lynch's, at 218 East Washington street. He was at work on the roof of a coal house and fell to the ground, a distance of about seven feet. When assistance reached him he was dead.

Lovett, who was a carpenter, had been employed by Mrs. Lynch about a week, having been engaged in building fences, repairing out-houses and doing other odd jobs. This afternoon he went to work on the roof of the coal house, which is located in the rear of the residence. About 2 o'clock Mr. H. P. Easley, who is employed on Mrs. Doak's new residence, next door, passed by and asked if he was preparing to put on a new roof. Lovett was sitting on the edge of the roof, with his feet swinging between the coal house and another small building, and just as Mr. Easley spoke to him he fell to the ground between the two houses, which are removed from one another by a space of three or four feet.

Mr. Easley and Mr. John Y. Smith, the contractor, went to the assistance of Lovett, who gave only one gasp for breath after they reached him. An examination by a physician showed that in the fall of six or seven feet his neck had been broken. Otherwise there was neither scratch nor bruise about the man's body.

The dead man leaves a wife and daughter both of whom reside in Greensboro.

Sabbath Echoes.

Dr. L. W. Crawford preached to the student body at the Normal College last night. Much interest was manifested, several of the young ladies coming forward and professing Christ.

The Spring Garden Street Methodist chapel was packed yesterday both at the morning and evening services to hear Rev. Walter Halcomb, who preached with power and unction. Numbers came forward seeking salvation and many of them found pardon and refuge in the Savior. At the hour for Sunday school in the afternoon the congregation was so large that it was found necessary to have a service instead of the regular Sabbath school exercise. The meeting will continue through the week.

At West Market yesterday morning the doors of the church were thrown open and twenty-one new members were added to the roll, all of them by profession of faith. They were converted at the meeting just closed in that church. The pastor, Dr. J. C. Rowe, did all the preaching in this meeting and this fact has been spoken of as a return to the old time method of conducting revivals.

Mesdames R. G. Vaughn and W. E. Allen sang a duet at the First Presbyterian church last night which has received many compliments.

Rev. C. E. Hodgin left today for Antioch church near Red Springs where he will assist Rev. C. F. Rankin in a meeting. Rev. T. M. Johnson will preach in Westminster church next Sunday, the two congregations worshiping together.

WHOLESALE ROBBERIES.

Colored People Seem to Have Been the Special Victims Last Night.

Colored people seem to have been the special victim of robbers last night. The barber shop of Alec Gilmer, on East Washington, was entered and robbed of a quantity of music belonging to the Star Cornet Band. Three razors were also taken from the shop.

A restaurant next door was robbed of a quantity of pies, cakes, cigars, cigarettes and tobacco—in all about $10 worth.

The robbers also visited Hiatt & Sloan's paper hanging establishment and removed goods to the value of about $25.

THE MAN IN OUR MIDST.

"The provincialism of New York on the subject of money, for instance," said a distinguished educator in Greensboro the other day, "is well known, while that of Boston on education is not less so. North Carolina is provincial on a certain subject, too. What is it? Why it's liberty. We have gone to extremes on it. Liberty is our hobby. We have ridden it to our hurt. Madame Roland may have been extreme when she uttered her famous apostrophe to liberty, but certainly our too much worship of the idea has been an injury to us. The politician may appeal to it for the purpose of frustrating almost any measure of progress, and the homage we have paid the idea has been a great stock in trade with the gentlemen looking for votes. We have thus been unable to learn fully the valuable lesson that civilization teaches—the need of giving up some degree of individual liberty for the public good. The most harmful way in which this sentiment has found expression is in the opposition to reasonable taxation. Taxation has been ever considered an infringement of liberty and therefore to be opposed except for the barest necessities."

A Greensboro traveling man who is a supporter of Mr. Simmons has just returned from a trip in the eastern part of the State, and reports the result of his observation there of the senatorial fight. "I had believed in the statement," he says, "of the Simmons people who have been claiming that the east was solid for their candidate, but quite to my surprise, I found that this was not true. I came in contact with people and had the opportunity of learning the sentiment. I found considerable division, really about half and half it seemed to me."

This morning a red hot anti-trust man met a friend, and in the earnestness of the old time free silver discussions, opened up on him. The friend didn't have time to talk then. He hadn't even gotten his morning mail. "Now," began his interlocutor, "you surely don't believe in these gigantic corporations that are crushing the life out of the country, do yon?" "No indeed," was the reply, "I don't believe in any kind of corporation. I even go further than that. I don't believe in partnerships. I think the government ought to pass a law that any man who has two dollars shall keep them in separate pockets."

Then he got his mail.

A story was current Saturday about a Guilford man who came to Greensboro some days before and got too full. His friends, who were trying to get him home, being overtaken by a shower of rain, and being unable to stop themselves, shut him up in a nearby guano house. He slept peacefully till on towards day, he said, when he found himself half awake and calling to his wife, thinking he was at home, to get up and see what was dead in the house.

"I believe in predistination," said a politician engaged in the present canvass. "That's why I think Bryan will be elected. I think the Lord will take care of this country, and if he is with us I believe the time has come for him to show his hand." When pressed as to his faith that the country was among the elect of Providence and would therefore find salvation in the election of Bryan, he admitted that he was relying a little more on the votes of the laboring classes in the towns and cities, and that the only thing, leaving Providence out, that offered any hopes for Mr. Bryan, was a ground swell in this vote at points where it was either unexpected or uncertain.

If some of the Northern fanatics on the negro subject, who believe that down South no white man ever looks at a negro except for cheating him out of his vote or something else, or to see what size rope would be required to lynch him in case he whimsically took a notion to do so, could have been in Greensboro Saturday and witnessed a little scene there might have been some dropping of scales from their eyes. A man, Mr. J. M. Wharton, came from his home at Jamestown for the sole purpose of seeing and carrying help to a former slave who is sick here. He went, carrying provisions and dainties in plenty, and doubtless, if the negro has been worthy since freedom came, the same affection and respect for him that, as is well known, masters entertained for their slaves in the South in the good old days. There is always something touching in incidents of this kind which become fewer and fewer as old slaves and old masters pass to their reward. They always recall and speak unmistakably of the better sentiments that existed between the master and man of half a century ago. Verily there has never existed a civilization so grand in many respects as that of the Old South.

CARR CLUB FOR HIGH POINT.

To be Organized Tonight—Revival Services Begun—The New Chair Factory.

Corresrondence of The Telegram.

High Point, Oct. 29—A series of meetings began yesterday morning at the Methodist Protestant Church. Rev. W. R. Lowdermilk, the pastor, will be assisted by Rev. Mr. Whittaker, of Kittrell, who will arrive today.

At the Methodist church yesterday morning Rev. J. R. Scroggs, the pastor, preached an interesting and profitable sermon from the text: "Father I am not worthy to be called thy son, make me as one of thy hired servants."

If Madam Rumor is correct there will be several weddings solemnized here in the near future.

The Tomlinson chair factory will be three stories high and 60x150 feet. It is the intention of the company to manufacture the finest line of chairs in the South, and to commence work by the 15th of next month. Mr. C. F. Tomlinson is president and Mr. S. H. Tomlinson secretary and treasurer.

The first campaign club for work in the coming national election will be organized here tonight. The object of the club will be to promote Gen. J. S. Carr's interests in the senatorial race. Mr. Carr's prospects seem to be brightening to some extent in this locality.

The merits of the two senatorial aspirants have truly reached the argumentative stage.

There are just a few people here who profess to know "all about it," and who assume that the county, State and country will vote in a particular way because they happen to be on that side.

She will be home about the first of November to open classes.

This system has completely revolutionized the method of teaching music to children, and the greatest educators and musicians are quick to realize the tremendous possibilities for pupils studying the system.

It is therefore not remarkable that it has been adopted in all the leading conservatories in Toronto, the New York Institute of Applied Music, which is a combination of the Metropolitan College of Music, the Metropolitan Conservatory of Music, the Synthetic Piano School, the American Institute of Normal Methods, and the Fletcher Music Method.

In Boston alone there are seventy-four teachers of the system.

By this new method the child, instead of being brought in sudden contact with a complex subject and expected to grasp and express it all at once, as was the case when brought to the instrument and made to read notes in a book, find keys, pay attention to time, technic, etc., is taught one thing at a time and interested by means of musical games and objective material which fix indellibly in the mind the essential principles of music.

Miss Weatherly will be delighted to give all investigators an opportunity to look into the method and examine her materials in the early part of November.

"That man," remarked the impecunious individual, "always reminds me of cash. He is so cold and distant."

"I wish to speak with you about the labor question," said the philospher to the laboring man. "I guess you're barking up the wrong tree," replied the laboring man; see that fellow over there with a square paper cap on his head like a man in a newspaper cartoon? He can tell you all about it. He never did a stroke of work in his life."

THEATRICAL CRITICISM.

Mr. I. E. Avery, the city editor of the Charlotte Observer, who is altogether one of the most entertaining newspaper writers in the State, has an excellent article on his page this morning on theatrical criticism. This article, like all of Mr. Avery's, contains some thoughtful suggestions on a subject that has for some time given us some concern and is a matter of general interest. The first paragraph reads:

There's a play traveling South, and it stopped long enough in Norfolk, Va., the other day to receive a newspaper roast, that meant killing. The roast has been heavily girded with a large blue pencil and transmitted to the paper's exchanges, so that the show may receive a familiar greeting in its further journey. The paper is altogether fair and responsible and its verdict is honesty. The burden now rests upon the exchanges. Will they complete the murder of the play by an advance publication of the criticism or not? Squareness with the public permits but one anwser—yet, of course, this is pre-judgment, in a way, and possible injustice.

And, in justice to the play, it must be said that criticism, at least unprofessional criticism—and professional too for that matter—is largely a matter of personal preferences. It may be that the play that received the above roast is fairly good as plays go in this section, but didn't happen to strike the fancy of the critic who wrote of it. Of course if there was vulgarity or indedency in the play, this rule should not apply, for all ought to be agreed on that point. One night last week a play was given in Greensboro. Next day both of the local papers commented on it, and the estimate of each was diametrically opposed to that of the other. Doubtless the opinion of the audience was also very much divided. Why? Granting each reporter sincerity of judgment there can be only the natural differences of taste to account for it. And, now, would it not manifestly be unfair to wholly damn or to land that play on the estimate of either?

Again quoting:

Usually it is the purpose of the newspapers to encourage the coming of as many shows as possible, and maybe, as in the case of this city, to persuade some one to build a first-class opera house. To do this it is necessary to be considerate in criticism. Because this place is so far removed from the centres of the "talent," the wise policy would seem to be to make the best of what is good and view failures leniently, hoping the demand for good acting may result in cleverer and more wholesome plays.

We know of small towns in which nice opera houses have been built on the strength of the public demand for them, yet the size of the town forbids a really first class company from playing in them. The manager, therefore, must perforce make his choice from among second rate ones. Is it any wonder that he makes mistakes and gets third or fourth rate ones sometimes? One thing the public and the press should insist on his doing, that is keeping out vulgarity and indecency. That is about as far, it appears to us, as they can go in justice. A manager can do this. He can first seek to avoid such plays, and next, warn each that nothing of the kind will be allowed. There are plenty of fairly good and entertaining ones that may be had without these bad features. The newspapers should score plays having these features. The article thus sums up:

The critic has trouble with his criterion; and there seems to be but one general rule that applies. That is to commend the shows that have merit or cleverness or that give evidences of study and work, and to criticise unsparingly plays that depend on cheap wit or vulgarity for attraction, that fail to show evidence of careful preparation, or, in fine, any staged-thing that tries to do the audience. The middle ground—the mediocre shows—is for the critic's varied point of view; and be may be kind for the reasons given.

This is, we think correct, and we shall not attempt to enlarge upon it, but there is yet one point on which we believe something may be said to advantage. It is the way some papers have of advertising plays in advance of their coming. We notice that there are papers that will run any kind of laudatory notice under their own news headlines, just as if they were of their own knowledge saying it, when in reality the notice was written by the sharp advertising agent of the show and was as heavily bedecked with praise as words could make it. This goes in the regular news column of the paper, under news headlines, with no mark to indicate to the reader that it is not the editor himself speaking from his personal knowledge. It IS, therefore the PAPER'S endorsement of the play, and its readers naturally take it as such. The shrewd advertiser knew this, because he is particular to have it go in thus. See? It looks tough for a paper to do this and tomorrow, after the play is gone, under the same headlines, in the same news column, to hop on the play with both feet.

In this matter, The Telegram, in justice to its readers, has adopted one invariable rule. All such notices as it prints are set under a special head which indicates that the notice is an advertisement, the words of the show manager himself, and are therefore to be taken for their worth, and are not in any way endorsed by the paper. It never sets one of these notices under its regular news head lines, or in any way that readers may not see at a glance that it is purely the play's own advertisement, and in no way vouchsafed for by us. When we have anything of our own to say, it is said under the regular news headlines of the paper and such notices appearing thus, may be taken as our own. Fairness to readers, to the plays and to the paper itself demands this arrangement. This much done, The Telegram believes that the public should be left to its own discrimination as to what it will or will not patronize. The character of the play may always be told with a fair degree of accuracy from its own advance advertising.

The Telegram has received a neatly printed and illustrated primary book on physical culture, by B. F. Johnson, and published by the B. F. Johnson Publishing Company, of Richmond. It is principally descriptive of the methods of heathful culture of children in the home before they begin school, and also in the school room. It appears to us to be a very valuable little book both for parents and teachers, written as it is, on a very important subject

IMPORTANT!

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 26th, 1900.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:

On and after October 15th, 1900, we, the undersigned, will do a strictly cash business. Our reasons are as follows:

1st. Absolute NECESSITY.

2nd. Laundry, the world over, is a recognized cash business and justly so.

3rd. Our accounts are necessarily small, and it causes an endless amount of confusion and expense to collect, besides losses each year in bad bills.

4th. All of our current expenses, such as labor, fuel, gas and supplies are cash, hence the stand we take is forced upon us. While we very much regret, in most cases, to exact the spot cash, yet we must treat all alike, and we see no other way out of the difficulty. We trust our customers will lend us their aid by stating when to return laundry and by being prepared to pay for same when delivered. Our drivers will have positive instructions to return to the laundry all packages not paid for.

We have on sale at office (for cash) coupon books from $1 to $5 which can be left at convenient place at home, so that on delivery of bundle the amount of laundry bill can be torn out by the driver.

Editor Poe Thinks 35 Per Cent. of the Pops Will Keep in the Middle of the Road, 15 Per Cent Will Travel McKinleyward, While 50 Per Cent Will Divide Between Bryan and Staying at Home—The Senatorial Situation in Wake.

Special Correspondence of The Telegram.

Raleigh, Oct., 28.—Judge Purnell and the other officials of the Federal Court left this evening for Wilmington, where the term of court begins tomorrow. The only case of public interest is that against J. L. York, of "mineraline" fame. The officials quite evidently expect his conviction.

A Republican who sits high in the synagogue said today that Dan Young, the Republican chairman of Wake county, has raised up some enemies, and not a few of them, by writing a letter urging that J. A. Giles, the Republican, and J. J. Jenkins, the Populist nominees for Congress, both retire in favor of ex-Congressman Strowd, and saying that in such case Congressman Atwater would support Strowd.

It appears also that some of the Republican brethren, and not a few, are saying that United States District Attorney Claude Bernard will not get a re-appointment—and yet these brethren are dead sure that McKinley will be elected. It looks like Bernards's name is mud.

Republican County Chairman Young when asked today what he expected his party to do in Wake at the election he said: "We will poll a very much larger vote for McKinley than we polled in August. We will poll several hundred votes for him, of men who voted for the constitutional amendment. We polled 4,500 votes in August. I think we will poll 5,000 for McKinley."

At the church of the Good Shepherd this morning the rector, Rev. Dr. Rittinger, instead of preaching a sermon made a talk about his visit to the great Episcopal Missionary Convention at Louisville. He said that on the 16th of November Bishop Hartridge, of Kioto, Japan, will be here and preach in the Church of the Good Shepherd.

At a church here at this morning's service, I saw a queer occurrence. Not long after the service began a white girl, perhaps ten years of age, came in and took a seat. She was dirty, and barefooted, and on her head was a "poke" bonnet. A minute later an equally dirty boy entered and took his seat beside her. Both of them were evidently the children of people who knew not Sunday and who in no way observe the day. Before the boy had been there a moment he looked up at a gentleman who was standing in rear of him and holding out his hand said in a very audible whisper, "Give me five cents." It was given, the giver of course thinking that the youngster wanted the money to put in the alms basin. In so thinking he was away off, for the brat after a shy look at the money as if to see that it was all right made a slide for the door and departed. nor was the frowsy little girl long in following him. It was the first case of begging in church ever seen here.

Ex-Governor Jarvis arrived this morning. He says that the Senatorial canvass will draw out a very large vote for the National and Congressional tickets.

J. H. Pou is at Smithfield and will have the direction of the defence of the fifty-seven Johnson county Democrats who are to be tried before a United States commissioner tomorrow on the charge of assaulting and intimidating one Massey, a Populist, last July. Mr. Pou has found a case which exactly covers this one, in which the Federal Court says it has no jurisdiction. The commissioner may not understand this and drop the case but the judge will.

Editor Poe, of the Progressive Farmer, was asked today how he thought the Populists would vote next month. He replied that in the counties in which "red shirts" flourished and were most numerous a large part of the Populists will vote for McKinley, but that otherwise the number who will so vote is not large. Perhaps 35 per cent will vote for the middle-of-the-road ticket, 15 per cent for McKinley and 55 per cent will be divided between Bryan and staying at home.

The manager of Gen. Carr's campaign claims Wake. R. F. Gray, one of Carr's friends here says the county is close; that there is a curious state of sentiment so that in the senatorship Carr will not get half a dozen votes, while in others Simmons will not get half a dozen. A Simmons man says he will literally sweep Wake. This same man calls on the Carr manager to name the five districts his candidate will carry.

The newly organized State Literary Association has already 125 members, who have signed its roll.

It now turns out that the cotton yield per acre at the State farms is larger than that last year.

MAN NEVER WITHOUT BEER.

Nineteen Centuries Before Christ the Process of Making Beer Was Taught.

When the Romans first invaded Germany they found that the beverage of the people was a beer produced from barley. But that was at a time comparatively modern. From the earliest times and in every clime, says an authority, man has had resort to some stimulating and exhilarating beverages prepared by fermenting the juices or extracts from fruits, grain or plants. It is said that Osiris as early as 1960 B. C. taught the process of extracting the juice from barley and fermenting it, while the Greeks learned how to brew and ferment from the Egyptians, who, 300 B. C., had established a number of manufactories at Pelusium, on the Nile. Xenophon, 400 B. C., refers to a fermented drink from barley, and it is alluded to by Aristotle, Strabo and others under the name of zythos. Pliny mentions a kind of beer called "cerevisia," and Eunemenes in A. D. 296 says that Britain produced such an abundance of corn that it was sufficient to supply not only bread, but a liquid comparable with wine. In the seventh century beer had become so general a beverage in England that Ina, king of Wessex, levied a tax to be paid in ale, and early in the fifteenth century a brewer's company was formed in London. Up to the sixteenth century English beer was very poor, only flavored with broom, bay berries or ivy berries, but in 1542 the cultivation of the hop plant was begun in England, and from that time a great change was made in the quality of the beer manufactured. In 1610 the first brewery was established at Burton-on-Trent, and by the end of the seventeenth century beer had become the national drink.

NEW STYLE OF LINE MAPS.

Some for Railroads Are Molded of Various Kinds of Clay and Baked Like Brick.

It is learned that the Northwestern Railway company, of England, is introducing in several of the stations of the line maps of the tile for accommodation of patrons of the road. The maps measure about six feet square and are made of tiles six inches square. In manufacturing these maps the tiles are made by the ordinary process of mixing various kinds of clay in liquid form. After the necessary treatment the tiles are molded, placed in the kiln and brought to the condition technically known as "bisque." The drawing of the map is reproduced on copper plates, one plate for each tile, and impressions are made upon specially prepared paper. The prints so prepared are transferred to the surface of the bisque tile and rubbed into it carefully to cause the oily ink of the paper impression to adhere to the tile. The paper is then removed by dampening it with water and rubbing it off, the ink being left behind without any danger of injuring the surface of the tile or blurring the fineness or the sharpness of the lines. The tiles are then sent to the kiln to be "hardened on," after which they are put in kilns and fired. They are then taken to the painting-room, where the colors are put on by hand, after which they are sent to the enameling kilns. After this third firing they are ready for "slabbing," as the cementing of a design or pattern in tile work is called.

It has been suggested that these maps will prove valuable for use for other than railroad purposes, particularly in the schoolroom, a great feature of this style being its durability.

Scrofula

THE OFFSPRING OF HEREDITARY BLOOD TAINT.

Scrofula is but a modified form of Blood Poison and Consumption. The parent who is tainted by either will see in the child the same disease manifesting itself in the form of swollen glands of the neck and throat, catarrh, weak eyes, offensive sores and abscesses and oftentimes white swelling—sure signs of Scrofula. There may be no external signs for a long time, for the disease develops slowly in some cases, but the poison is in the blood and will break out at the first favorable opportunity. S. S. S. cures this wasting, destructive disease by first purifying and building up the blood and stimulating and invigorating the whole system.

J. M. Seals, 115 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., says: "Ten years ago my daughter fell and cut her forehead. From this wound the glands on the side of her face became swollen and bursted. Some of the best doctors here and elsewhere attended her without any benefit. We decided to try S. S. S., and a few bottles cured her entirely."

SSS makes new and pure blood to nourish and strengthen the body, and is a positive and safe cure for Scrofula. It overcomes all forms of blood poison, whether inherited or acquired, and no remedy so thoroughly and effectively cleanses the blood. If you have any blood trouble, or your child has inherited some blood taint, take S. S. S. and get the blood in good condition and prevent the disease doing further damage.

GOING HOME RICH.

Dr. Sheldon Jackson, commissioner of education for Alaska, has conveyed across the continent 25 Laplanders who were sent by the government to Alaska 30 months ago with reindeer and who are now on their way home to Jokohnk. The Laplanders, says the New York Sun, were sent to Alaska early in the Klondike excitement with reindeers that were to be used as beasts of burden and food by the starving miners. The Klondikers were found to be less needy than was supposed, and the deer were not used for food. The Laplanders were employed as mail carriers and deer drivers at a salary of $268 a year each, besides food and cloth ing. They are now going home rich beyond the dreams of avarice with from $600 to $700 each, enough to keep their families in affluence for years.

Of the 540 deer imported by the government many died of starvation before they reached the tundra, hay being found so rich a diet that they would not eat it. Later 700 reindeer doe were brought over from Siberia, and the Alaska herd now numbers nearly 3,000. Dr. Jackson says the services of the Laplanders to care for them are no longer needed, and that they will increase rapidly under government protection. He looks for them to become ultimately an important source of wealth in interior Alaska.

CATTLE VS. SHEEP.

Cause of a Bitter Feud in the Western Country.

Natural Differences Between the Handlers of Two Kinds of Live Stock—Devastating Effect of Sheep.

The perennial fight between western cattlemen and sheepmen is a study for both the psychologist and the economist. At first glance the interests of these great divisions of the live stock industry would appear to be in common. But, in truth, this can never be. Cattle and sheep can no more occupy a range in common than oil and water can float coherently. The cowpuncher hates the shepherd with a hatred that is deep and ofttimes picturesque, and the herder begirts himself with artillery and sullenly stands on the defensive, writes Capt. James M. McClintock, in Ainslee's.

The trouble between the cattle and sheep industries mainly proceeds from the natural differences between the two classes of live stock. Cattle are home-keeping in their habits. They are as hard to lose as a house cat, unless, perchance, the cheerful and reckless rustler happens along. A range cow naturally will make her "run" where she was born. Her owner and his cowboys expect to find her within easily defined limits, usually along some certain cattle trail that starts at a watering place and leads back to higher ground. In ordinary weather, if water be easy of access, about all the cattle will be found some time during the day along the creeks, in the shade or luxuriantly hock deep in the mud. The night is spent back on the feeding ground. Drive the cow away, even 100 miles, and back she will drift, though her return be to a feeding ground by far the worse. Back home she will come, though it be to starve and die.

Sheep, on the contrary, are necessarily nomadic. They are gregarious, "bunching" by instinct. One man with his dog can care for even 4,000, though only half that number is usually allotted. A flock of sheep is about as devastating as a prairie fire. Where it has passed the grass is gone, even to the roots, the sage brush is defoliaged and the track so reeks with the sheep's peculiar odor that cattle and horses avoid the ground for weeks afterward. And the herds in their ceaseless journeying never follow one another. To use a pat military expression, they come "en echelon," in a path parallel to and abutting one edge of the strip devastated by the preceding woolly army. Thus, if one flock eat out a half-mile strip, ten flocks will leave a barren area five miles wide. The better the feed the slower the rate of travel. The flock moves on when the grass is consumed. No diagram is needed to show the effect of such a raid on a cattle range. The rage of the cattlemen is not hard to imagine.

A quarter of a century ago, when the wild west was virgin land and pasture, there was plenty of room for both cattle and sheep. But as the country has filled up and as the area of untenanted or unclaimed land has shrunk, the two branches of live stock have been driven in upon each other more and more, until they are now in contention for possession of the same field. Little by little the herders and punchers have been forced from the plains up into the mountains. Western Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas, the western portion of Oregon and Washington, and all of California, which were once free ranges, have become less and less available. Even Colorado and Utah and a portion of Wyoming, because of the advance of farmers and miners, afford a constantly shrinking pasturage. Both sheepmen and cattlemen have been obliged to seek the high and untenable lands in the mountains, where the forests and the watersheds are the only sections that afford sufficient feed.

The struggle between them, therefore, is waged chiefly in what is known as the plateau region of the continent. From lower New Mexico and Arizona, and western Texas northward to the American boundary, and from the eastern Montana line westward to the summit of the Cascade mountains, the sheepmen and the cattlemen are fighting for the control of the remaining ranges. The sheep go into the verdant meadows of the forests, and the cattlemen seek to expel them. The cattlemen occupy some section where the grasses are succulent and the water plentiful, only to find the sheep working into the same district, cropping the grass to its roots, and tainting the air with the smell which the cattle cannot endure. The closer settlement crowds in upon the formerly unsettled lands the more bitter becomes the antagonism. Frequently it breaks out in brief shooting matches, in which the cattlemen generally prove themselves the more expert. More often it culminates in strained sentiments and press reports of "trouble threatened between cowboys and sheep herders." Again it breeds feuds which are fully as swift and decisive as those of Kentucky.

Paper Walls at Indian Head.

In order to minimize the destructive effects of possible explosions in the government's new powder manufactory at Indian Head all the buildings are provided with "paper" walls at the ends. The theory is that these light walls will be immediately blown aside by the concussion of the explosion, leaving the main walls, which are built as strongly as possible, practically unharmed.

Chief Scott's Assistance Invoked in a Family Row.

Yesterday morning the wife of Will Smith, colored, approached Chief of Police Scott and asked for a warrant for the arrest of her husband, claiming that he had stolen nearly all her clothing. She had hardly left police headquarters when the accused came in to lodge a complaint against his spouse, alledging cruelty, incompatibility and threats to leave him.

It developed that it was only an ordinary family family row, and as the chief is not a peace maker, he declined to interfere.

"But, father," protested the young woman in the case, "I don't see why you should object to him. He is so sedate and staid." "Well, I don't know much about his ability to see dates," replied her father, "but I do know that he staid until two o'clock this morning."
